

Would you like to be a trainer on the Education & Training Foundation Digital Skills Programme? Attend one of our Train the Trainer Webinars

The Foundation is hosting 4 Digital Skills Courses and is looking for in-house trainers to provide tuition and support to teaching and training staff participating in their institution. The webinar will provide you with information and training on how you could get involved and become a Digital Skills Trainer. It will enable you to download the Train the Trainer Pack, develop an understanding of the role and how the programme could be implemented in your institution

About the Webinars

The Course Designers for new Digital Skills Courses hosted by the Education & Training Foundation are seeking in-house trainers to run the courses to teaching and training staff in their institutions. Train the Trainer webinars are being run on either 5th April or 19th April 2017 at 10.00am. At the webinar, the facilitators, Beverley Jones from the Careers Colleges Trust and Christina Conroy from Coralesce will share how to run the courses and strategies for in-house staff development.

What are the Digital Skills Courses?

The four digital skills courses cover:

- Video Learning
- Using Social Media
- Assessment for Learning
- Online Meeting Technologies

Trainer Requirements

Potential trainers should:

- have completed at least one of the digital skills courses or be willing to do so;
- be confident in the use of digital in teaching and learning;
- be willing to support and coach staff colleagues.
